The authors illustrate accounting not as a set of technical procedures, but as a way of identifying and understanding business problems and a means for evaluating alternative solutions. Seemingly Mundane Aug 29 2019 Develop a habit of daily journaling and cultivate an appreciation for your life. Daily journaling can be easy and inspiring, even if you only give it five minutes a day. Opening a journal to a blank page can sometimes feel intimidating. This journal is very low-pressure, and doesn't come with a large time commitment, just six lines per day. It is not a guided journal and there aren't daily prompts. Instead, it's a short entry journal with an intention as a whole, and that's to help you cultivate gratitude, appreciation, presence, self-love and acceptance... for your life, as it is NOW. In this journal, all you have to do is write a little bit about what happens each day, like you would in a diary. From the outside, that seems super basic, but there is magic underneath this daily practice. Social media has made us look at our lives in such a way that only the things we would actually consider posting are worthy. If it's not good enough to post online, then it's not good enough. And we end up missing so much of the good stuff because we have a wonky measuring stick to determine what's "good enough." Rather than being in a perpetual state of wishing for a new and improved life, this journal helps you stay in the present moment by paying attention to what you're living now; since you'll want to write about it later. And what you end up with is a keepsake of a whole year of your life. Of little things that you might not have noted down otherwise. Little things that maybe ended up being big things. Inside you will find: One year worth of entries Semi-dated, start any day, any year Short-entry journal, six lines per day Five days per page Two pages every month(ish) to vision-board, scrapbook, or as extra journaling space. Increase your happiness baseline, and build a sense of gratitude for your days as they currently are, knowing that where you are now is good enough, and from that foundation, you can call in more. The "everyday" only seems mundane and common, but it's actually what our whole lives are made of. Thanks so much for supporting a woman-owned small business. You're awesome!

The Moth and the Mountain Sep 10 2020 "In the 1930s, as official government expeditions set their sights on conquering Mount Everest, a little-known World War I veteran named Maurice Wilson conceives his own crazy, beautiful plan: he will fly a plane from England to Everest, crash-land on its lower slopes, then become the first person to reach its summit--all utterly alone. Wilson doesn't know how to climb. He barely knows how to fly. But he has the right plane, the right equipment, and a deep yearning to achieve his goal. In 1933, he takes off from London in a Gipsy Moth biplane with his course set for the highest mountain on earth. Wilson's eleven-month journey to Everest is wild: full of twists, turns, and daring. Eventually, in disguise, he sneaks into Tibet. His icy ordeal is just beginning."--Provided by publisher.
